to any four men in the village you shall select?" "No, I shall have the fence." Not at all discomposed, Mr. F. said,—"Well, neighbor, then I will leave it to you, to whom the fence belongs, whether to you or myself." Struck dumb by this appeal the worthy man turned away, "I won't have anything to do with a man that won't contend for his rights.""

A lady, in a philosophical mood, asked a male friend how it happened that hoys got all their bad traits from their fathers. "I don't know," was the reply; " but perhaps it would help us to answer if we could find out where the girls get their blemishes from." "Oh," replied the fair

Southern Sentiment.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune has interviewed" that sterling "Democrat," Robert Toombs of Georgia, and received from him Southern views as to the present and prospective political situation. We quote from the correspondent's letter :

In a few minutes Gen. Toombs came in, and soon commenced to talk politics. I told him that he was understood to represent the most ultra wing of the Democratic party in Georgia, and that I was desirous of learning his views upon political questions. "Yes," he said, "I think of the new departure of the Northern Democracy, as expounded by Vallandigham and the Pennsylvania Convention? Shall you support it?" " Never. I would sooner vote for Horace Greeley than for any Democrat upon such a platform. Greeley and the Republicans first got it up; it's their patent, and I have more respect for them than for such scoundrels as Vallandigham, who wants to steal their ideas." Mr. Toombs spoke at some length in this style, declaring finally that the people of the South could never be brought to accept the Constitutional Amendments as finalities, and that if the Democratic party took that ground they would have will fight you again just as soon as we can get speech and a free press are guaranteed. ready," he answered; "and I believe we can get ready much sooner than most people think. "You cannot seriously believe that the South will attempt another war?" "I certainly do, and I believe I shall live to see Southern Independence. Many of our people are losing the hope that they will see 'Shiloh' in their day, but they are training their children up to take

Gen. Toombs spoke with great bitterness of the Reconstruction Acts and Constitutional Amendments. The party that passed them were liars, he said, for they pretended to believe in self-government, and at the same time would not give the South any liberty to regulate her own affairs, but ruled her first by military officers and then by a horde of Northern thieves, sent down here to hold the offices and tyrannize over the people. "Why can't you let us alone?" he went on excitedly. "If your idea of government is not a lie, stay away and let us manage our own affairs. We don't want to have anything to do with you. We had the satisfaction of ings were as bitter as they were when the contest was at its height.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

I remember one of those rare instances in the experience of country printers, says Whitelaw Reid, in his Editorial Reminiscences, when a man came into the office to thrash me. I had then arrived at the mature age of eighteen, but I was not as vigorous as I am now. In the course of some police items in a country town, I had occa-sion to say that a Dutch butcher—being six feet, age thirty-nine, weight two hundred—had whipped his wife, a proceeding to which I objected, and commented on with a severity which I hope the enlightened press of the country will always exhibit on such occasions.

The next day the butcher came in and proposed to "interview" the writer of that paragraph. He looked at me and inquired if I wrote it. . and believed he was not. I said loudly: " Put your hand in your pocket, and give me two dollars to pay your subscription! Until you do, I would like to know what business it is of yours what we say?"

I escaped the thrashing that time, and commend it to the attention of all who put such things in their papers.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S VIEWS .- New York, June tact and skill, however, to deal with them. They are shrewd and cunning, and won't be shaved out of their rights if they know it. The first Pike I tried it on yelled with delight; the next one took two drinks, and turned a double conserved in the road before the house. It is a fortune circumstance that at every appearance of this epidemic the mortality grows smaller and smaller. The improvement in ventilation and the greater cleanliness of the masses have not been without their effects in reducing the virulence of these periodical visitations Science, too, is grappling with them with heroic fortitude. We have heretofore enjoyed almost a complete immunity from epidemics of all kinds in this city, and there is no reason why we should not continue to do so. The secret correspondence between the Tuileries and the Emperor Napoleon during the campaign of 1870 has been translated, and is published in the New York Herald. It is extremely humiliating to the late leaders of the empire, in the light of the events of the past year, and, being read in France, will go far toward destroying the claims of those ambitious people to future recognition. "Orders cross and contradict each other," says the Herald. "The empress regent and her advisers and the emperor and his staff at Metz were at variance in almost everything except in the resolve to repair the disasters.
